FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

NORTH AMERICAN RESCUE HELPS MEDICAL COLLEGE DEVELOP TACTICAL MEDICAL TRAINING

North American Rescue, Inc. (NAR) and National Tactical Officers Association (NTOA) collaborated with The Medical College of Georgia Center of Operational Medicine to improve tactical medical training. The result—the STORM™ initiative. The Specialized Tactics for Operational Medicine debuted in a demonstration at the NTOA 25th Anniversary Conference in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Center of Operational Medicine Director Dr. Phillip Coule says, “Because tactical scenarios can change at any second, treatment options during those situations can also change. We want them to know what to do when there’s a medical emergency involving them or a co-worker and there is no access to immediate medical care.” By imitating wartime military techniques, the STORM™ initiative presents rescue strategies for tactical officers. The program offers training and support for officers, tactical commanders, and medical personnel involved in tactical law enforcement operations.

North American Rescue, Inc. worked diligently with the college faculty, NTOA and a variety of experts to develop the standards implemented in STORM™.

North American Rescue, Inc., based in Greer, South Carolina, has enjoyed the honor of serving their country, community, and customers for over a decade. By providing innovative casualty care solutions to first responders, health care professionals, and security forces at home and abroad, NAR is leading the fray to decrease preventable death on the battlefield, whether it be a foreign combat zone or the streets of America.
